A picture book about the special relationship between Friedemann, a five year old who doesn't like to wear clothes, and his Grandpa Kurt, who is the only one who doesn't try to change him.

CONTENT

Friedemann is five years old, calm, and easygoing; anyone who has four older sisters needs steady nerves! Friedemann likes most things, but he definitely does not like pants, shirts, and socks. The only one who doesn't have a problem with Friedemann being naked is Grandpa Kurt, who is also uncomplicated and relaxed. That's why they get along so well. In Grandpa Kurt's garden Friedemann gets a little peace from his clothing-obsessed family. One day, something blue is hanging in the apple tree – it must be a parachute, or a flight suit! He really likes the blue thing: it is blue like grandpa's eyes, as soft as a hug, and just the right size. Friedemann willingly puts it on and decides he will never take it off again!
