CONTENT

Eighteen-year-old Widney is new to New York and snags a room in an exceptionally chic loft apartment. Her roommates behave a little oddly sometimes, but sparks are flying between Widney and Quentin. A relationship develops between them, and she befriends Kim Young at the university. Everything seems to be going so well! But on her nineteenth birthday, something unbelievable happens: A crescent-shaped mark appears on her wrist, and any time someone near her is genuinely scared, it starts to tingle. Then she sees ravens, as if in a vision, and starts to hear the fears of her fellow human beings. Gradually, she and Kim figure out that her abilities are connected with the Egyptian moon god Khonsu. She continues to research and soon realizes that her roommates are involved in this, too. Finally, they admit to her that they are all sun warriors, while she belongs to the opposing cult of the sickle bearers. They try to recruit Widney to their side, to spy on these sickle bearers for them. The sun warriors have to find out what their opponents are planning so they can prevent the captured moon god Khonsu from being freed. Although Widney feels betrayed by her roommates and especially Quentin, she decides to help them.
